3. National Dental Students' Scientific Conference (NDSSC) is an annual event that serves as a platform for undergraduate dental students to present their research and participate in various competitions. It was first organised in May 2009 at Universiti Sains Malaysia, Kubang Kerian. Until now, 13 successful NDSSCs have been held in various states in Malaysia by USM, UM, UKM, UiTM, IMU, AIMST, UIAM, USIM, PIDC, MUCM, MAHSA, MDSA, and previously by SEGI university. Due to the outbreak of Covid-19, the 14th NDSSC 2022 is unable to be held physically. However, with great importance in developing tomorrow's leaders in dental health, it is essential to provide a platform to discuss oral health and emerging dental research. Therefore, amidst the hardship we are having now, a virtual conference would provide an opportunity and platform for dental students from 13 dental universities across Malaysia to exchange ideas and discuss the latest information in dental care and oral health through oral presentations of their research. Meanwhile, the upcoming conference consists of a dental forum by the renowned speakers. The aim of the event is to promote academic sharing and exchange of technical know-how among dental students.
